NATIONAL REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE HAS PLANS ALL ARRANGED FOR THE CONTEST.

Roosevelt Leaders Have Conference As to What They Will Do When the Committee Passes on Questions of Seats.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, June 6.—In an effort to expedite the decisions in cases of contested delegates to the republican national convention members of the national committee determined to take up immediately after the preliminaries of the organization have been disposed of today.

The mass of contested cases confronting the committee involving the rights of more than two hundred and fifty delegates to seats has convinced the members that unusual measures will be necessary to dispose of them all before the national convention meets June 18th. The Atlanta, California, and Arkansas cases were ready for submission to the committee this morning.

The question of whether the committee meetings will be opened to newspaper men was still unsolved early today. A tentative plan to admit a limited number of newspaper men received opposition from both the Roosevelt and Taft forces on the ground that it did not provide suffi-

Frank B. Kolleg of Minnesota is expected to offer a motion when the committee meets to take up the matter of making public the detailed information of the committee on each contested case.

Early this morning observers of the national committee men found food for thought in the meeting at breakfast for Chas. R. Ihly secretary to President Taft and Arthur Vors, national committee man from Ohio. The two arrived on the separate trains but met in the dining room and after talking as they ate conferred with members of the committee who had come in previously.

Although the representation was not complete a majority of the members of the republican national committee assembled at the Coliseum to prepare to enter the first of a 10 day series of meetings which will determine who shall fill 251 contested seats of a total of 1,678 in the floor of the convention when it is called to order June 18.

This meeting was expected to develop a skirmish between Taft and Roosevelt forces which may become highly important in foreshadowing the line of fighting that will be carried into the convention.

The Taft leaders, according to reports from various sources have decided to use their claimed majority of the committee to seat Taft delegates in nearly all the contests.

CORPUS CHRISTI FESTIVAL CELEBRATED IN VIENNA.

Vienna, June 6.—Vienna today witnessed the customary elaborate celebration of the festival of Corpus Christi. The festival was instituted in 1246 in honor of the Consecrated Host and though it is generally observed by Roman Catholics everywhere, in no other city is the celebration of such a splendid character as in Vienna. The custom for the Emperor of Austria to take part in the procession was begun in the seventeenth century by Ferdinand II, who by his presence succeeded in putting a stop to the conflicts between Catholic and Protestant mobs, with which the ceremonies in those days were almost invariably attended. The ceremony has been observed ever since by the Emperor of Austria.

The trial of Joseph J. Etter and his associate Giovannitti for murder in Massachusetts may result in serious labor disturbances. Etter and Giovannitti were leaders in the strike at Lawrence, Mass., last winter. During the course of the strike there was a plot in which one of the strike sympathizers was killed. The two leaders were seized and jailed. An effort will be made to convict them of murder, on the ground that they incited the plot. William D. Haywood, leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, declares that the 100,000 members of that organization will strike in a body if Etter and Giovannitti are convicted.

FREIGHT SITUATION FAST CLEARING UP

Local Railway Agents Report That Shipments are Being Received in Good Time Now.

Agents for the C. M. & St. P. and C. & N. W. railroads in this city state that the freight situation in Chicago is fast clearing up and that shipments into Janesville are being received with about the usual regularity.

"One of the main difficulties which arose on account of the strike," said Alva L. Hemmens, agent of the C. & N. W., read here, "was congestion of freight in the transfer houses. As soon as men could be secured to take care of this the situation was relieved and now there is little difficulty. Some little delay has been experienced still by the eastern roads in the transportation of goods east and west, but shipments on our line are now moving normally and we have received no complaints."

Fred W. Zimmerman, Janesville agent for the C. M. & St. P. railway, returned on Monday of this week from Chicago where he has been at work for four weeks past at the transfer house of his company being called there at the beginning of the strike trouble. Mr. Zimmerman stated today that the freight was being cleared up in the warehouses at the end of each day's work and that the congestion has been relieved.

"The principal delay," said Mr. Zimmerman, "was in non-perishable goods, as every effort was made to take care of perishable freight. The situation is now under control and full forces of freight handlers are now employed at the warehouses. It is the decision of the roads to keep open houses, and all union men who return to work do so as individuals. Some have returned to work but a great many new men were broken in which was something of task. At our warehouses we secured some very good men and they were getting along nicely when I left."

Mr. Zimmerman was employed at the daily transfer house of his road while in Chicago, where goods had to be handled with all the dispatch possible. As an indication of some of the difficulties of the situation at its most critical point, he said that sixteen carloads of non-perishable freight east-bound which had collected in their warehouses was shipped to Prairie du Chien, and re-shipped in solid eastern cars to the east.

The demands of the freight-handlers were for $5 a month increase in pay, plus hour a day schedule, Saturday afternoons off, and two weeks vacation with pay. The companies offered a raise of $2.50 a month previous to strike, and new men usually receive the benefit of this. The open shop rule is in force in all the warehouses.

Local merchants who were inconvenienced during the early part of the stoppage have scarcely any difficulty in receiving shipments at present. Credit is due the railroads for the manner in which they handled the situation.

EXPERIENCE DELAY IN PAVING MAIN ST.

Work Between Prospect and Fourth Avenue Can Not Be Started Until Trolley Poles Are Moved.

Further delay is being met with in the paving of North Main street between Prospect avenue and Fourth avenue. The Wisconsin Telephone company has moved its wires to poles across the street and it would take but a short time to remove the old poles so that the railway workmen could start moving the side-track toward the work. The trolley wires of the street railway company, however, are supported from some of the poles to be moved and until the company provides other support for them work must be held in abeyance. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway had a crew of thirty-five men ready to put to work last night but was unable to use them as the poles were in the way. The railway has also placed its concrete mixer and other machinery to be used in laying concrete under the track which crosses the street. Expansion joints are being put into the completed pavement today. Work on the sub-grade on the east side of the street between Milwaukee and Second streets is making fair progress.

SHE THINKS HE IS WORTH $10,000,000

If you were a sprightly young widow and wanted to get married, what value would you place upon a nice eligible man? What's that? Twenty-five cents? Well, that would be a fair price for most men, but a widow who lives on Cape Cod is acquainted with a man who lives in New York whom she values at $10,000,000. Her name is Mrs. Mary A. Garland, and she is a beautiful young widow from Bourne, Mass. The man is Francis Cushing Green.

By the terms of Mr. Garland's will his widow is entitled to the use of his $10,000,000 estate as long as she remains single, but on her marriage she must forfeit all. She has fallen in love with Mr. Cushing and will probably marry him. "Money isn't everything, and love is," says Mrs. E. G. Garland. "And besides, you know just that the man whom I am going to marry has more money than the amount I will lose by marrying again."

A LONG LIFE ENDED BY ANGEL OF DEATH

Mrs. Sarah Bull Passed Away Shortly After Three This Morning At Her Home on Ravine Street.

With the death of Mrs. Sarah Bull, at her home 202 Ravine street, early this morning, Janesville loses another of its aged and respected citizens, her immediate family, a loving and devoted relative, her friends a true and loyal companion, and her church a faithful Christian worker. Mrs. Bull was a wonderful woman. Her beautiful Christian character, her devoted interest in her old friends, her life of activity in her earlier years gave her a vast fund of information which her keen mind never forgot, made her a most interesting companion. Born in Bolton, Vermont on May 3, 1827, she spent her early life amid the culture and refinement of the east. She was married to the late Abram C. Bull in May of 1853. Moving to Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Bull spent five years of residence, later going to St. Louis. Her husband became paymaster in the United States army and during his term of service they made their home in San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Washington, D. C. In 1870 General Bull retired from the active service and came west to Alton, Kansas, which city he founded, it being known as Bull City, named in his honor. Unfortunately, the General was killed by a pet elk which he was feeding in 1879, leaving his widow and young child in the western country. Mrs. Bull was appointed the first post mistress of the little town her husband had founded and remained there for several years before returning to Janesville to make her home. Here her four brothers, the late Thomas Field, Leavitt Field, Elbridge Field and David Field, resided and here Mrs. Bull took up her life again surrounded by the loving care and attention of her immediate relatives. For some years past Mrs. Bull has been an invalid, confined to her home for the most part of the time, and of late years using an invalid's chair constantly. Through all her pain and suffering she has maintained a true Christian spirit and been a devoted and devout member of the Trinity Episcopal parish, from which church the funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30, Reverend Henry Willmann, officiating. Mrs. Bull's daughter, Mrs. Nora Hadden of Mobile, Alabama, is on her way to Janesville and will arrive Friday, having been notified of her mother's condition some days ago. Aside from Mr. Hadden there are to mourn her loss, the following nephews and nieces, Mrs. Helen Shoror, Miss Catherine Field, Mr. James Field of this city, Frank Field of the state of Washington, Miss Harriet Field of Janesville, Edward Field of Beloit, Judge Charles Field and Dr. George Field of Janesville.

RAINS INJURE PLUM CROP APPLES AND BERRIES SHORT

Indications Are For Light Yield of Fruits in Wisconsin This Year

Says J. G. Moore.

(Special to the Gazette)

Madison, Wis., June 6.—The plum crop in Wisconsin has been seriously injured by recent rains, according to J. G. Moore of the university horticultural department. The crop is affected with brown rot, which came at the time of the heavy rains when farmers were unable to spray the trees. The berry crop will also be short this year, says Mr. Moore, due to the severe winter.

"I think we will have a half crop of apples," said Mr. Moore. "The primary reason is that in Wisconsin a short crop always follows a bumper crop. Last year we had our bumper crop. The second reason is that the weather conditions were bad just at the blossoming time, with rain from two-thirds to three-fourths of the time damaging the fruit. This has had some effect upon the amount to be produced, and I believe that the crop this year will be about one-third of last year's."

"The apples will be scabby this year. The rains gave the fungus diseases and insects a chance to work so the marketable crop of apples this fall will be small."

At least one inmate of the Manhattan State Insane Asylum at New York City has a deep sense of gratitude. The members of the Irish-American club team combed for the benefit of this

This has been a year of surprises in the American League. The done stars were never so far off in their predictions as this season. They told us, for instance, that the Athletics would have no trouble in sticking around the top of the league. Where are they? Their mournful story is told in the box scores, the batting averages, etc. They've lost more games than they've won.

CHICAGO MAN TOOK HONORS AT SHOOT

J. C. YOUNG MADE SCORE OF 146 IN AMATEUR CLASS AT GUN CLUB TOURNAMENT YESTERDAY.

WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

LARGE NUMBER OF OUT-OF-TOWN GUNNERS TOOK PART IN SHOOT AND OPENING OF THE NEW GROUNDS WAS HIGHLY SATISFACTORIAL.

11,000 SHELLS FIRED.

J. C. Young of Chicago took the high honors of the day in the amateur class at the gun tournament yesterday, breaking 146 out of a possible 150 of the clay targets. F. J. Dryfus of Muskego, Ill.; was a close second with a score of 141. In the professional class, H. D. Freeman of Cottage Park, Ga., was high gun with a record of 146 birds broken. W. D. Standard of Chicago and E. B. Graham of Ingleside, tied for second with scores of 141.

The tournament was a most successful one as it was, but would have been a greater success but for an accident to the trap, which delayed the shooting in the afternoon, and prevented carrying out the full program as planned, the club being unable to hold the special event, the shoot under the Squier Money-Bank system, for which the Interstate Association for the Encouragement of Trap Shooting had donated fifty dollars.

The success of the tournament is shown by the large number of gunners who took part in it. There were sixty in all entered in the events yesterday, the number including many from out of the city, from all parts of Wisconsin and Northern Illinois. This is a greater number than took part in the Nebraska state shoot last week, at which forty-five trap shooters were entered, and as the visitors seemed highly pleased with the grounds of the local club, a larger attendance is assured for the annual tournament next year.

About eleven thousand shells were fired in the competition at the tournament yesterday, and about the same number of White Flyer targets were broken. Estimating the cost of the shells at three cents each and the cost of the targets at two cents apiece, in the neighborhood of five hundred and fifty dollars was expended for ammunition and targets.

ATHLETIC CLUB PLAN FOR GOOD CONTESTS

WILL HAVE WIND UP BOXING CONTESTS FOR PRESENT SEASON ON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19TH.

Unless the plans of the committee of the Janesville Athletic Club are carried there will be four clever boxing contests held at the Auditorium on Wednesday, June 19th next in which some of the best of the little men in the squared circle will compete. With the exception of an opponent for Kid De Munn, the clever Little Belvidore boxer, the card has been filled and promises to be most excellent. Fredy Andrews, of Milwaukee, a snappy 126 pounder will meet Kid Troubles of Chicago in eight rounds. Troubles is already here doing his preliminary training and shows excellent form. Charley Neary of Milwaukee, will be given a chance to demonstrate his skill with Jack Hendricks of Chicago at 123 pounds for eight rounds and Young Cox of Janesville, who is speedy corner in the game is matched with a beloit youth named Cross, who has aspirations, at 121 pounds. All four of the contestants promise lots of excitement and as the affair will be pulled off during the three days of the Eagles state convention there will doubtless be a large audience of enthusiastic admirers of the little game present. The committee having charge of the affair for the club are George Abbott, Norman Bugge and Tim McElroy. They are in Milwaukee today to find an opponent for De Munn.

NOT QUITE SO COISTEROUS.

While the "Rough Riders" are planning to capture the Chicago convention, with brass bands and a regiment

two thousand strong, their intrepid leader has evidently seen a vision.

His attitude towards Elihu Root, the proposed temporary chairman, did not receive the endorsement anticipated and while our own Governor McGovern stopped over in his ambition for a little cheap notoriety it now appears that he may not be able to deliver the goods.

This failure would naturally disap-point the Colonel, for he has counted on the twenty-six votes from Wisconsin and the ten from Iowa to the extent of following his leadership in a boil if necessary.

McGovern seemed willing to stand

but the man he represents, and whom he was elected to support, has never been halter-broke and he has no more time for Roosevelt than for Taft. He is standing for a principle and the twenty-six delegates from his state are pledged to stand by him, to the last ditch.

Another incident, which has had a depressing influence on the colonel, is the action of the Ohio convention in electing Taft delegates. The presidential primaries, in a few states, so inflated the Oyster Bay candidate that he imagined that everything was done but the shouting. He failed to recognize the fact that a primary election is a snare and delusion, because it only interests a comparative fragment of the vote, except in cases where a nomination is equivalent to an election.

The great rank and file of the republican party has not been heard from and will not be until November.

The national committee, now in wa-sion in Chicago, represents the party as a whole, and knows nothing about factions, or claims of disgruntled candidates. This committee is responsible to the party, and not to the individual. It is composed of men who can neither be frightened nor bulldozed; a fact which the colonel is forced to recognize.

A New York paper discovers another reason for the lull in enthusiasm, and that is a shortage of funds for fireworks. The paper says:

"Wall Street was wondering yesterday why the Roosevelt leaders,

Senators Dixon, Medill McCormick,

Bainbridge, Colby and others were still in

New York when they had announced their intentions last week of moving their headquarters at once to Cleveland. At the Waldorf, where the three leaders named were, gloom was in the air.

"Wall Street suspected that the reason was money. It was said that for some mysterious reason the source of supplies had been cut off, and there were not sufficient funds in hand to prosecute the campaign in Chicago.

Preliminary primary expenditures were lavish, and the funds, it was rumored, were all gone, with no more in sight."

"A theory growing out of this enforced detention in New York was that compromise negotiations were on foot, and that the lull in the fight against Senator Root is part of this program, with the view of leaving it to him to clear the situation in his opening address at Chicago.

"This theory as to the function to be exercised by Senator Root recalled to mind the speech the Senator delivered at Utica during the Stimson campaign in 1910, in which, contro-versing the argument that a Stimson victory meant Roosevelt for president in 1912, he declared that it might be necessary, for the good of the republican party, to overlook the claims of both Taft and Roosevelt.

Wall Street reasoned that Mr. Root might be going to call attention to that speech and to suggest that the time had now come to restore harmony by finding another candidate.

"In this connection the name of Senator Borah of Idaho is being discussed in whispers. He is looked up on as a near-progressive with conservative tendencies and as being one of the ablest men in the United States

Senate."

Late Home Grown Crop One of Causes Assigned for Unexpected Increase—Asparagus Is Scarce.

Strawberries which have been of very high order this season and have been offered for sale at ten cents a box for the past week or more, took an unexpected jump of two cents in price this morning. The late crop of home-grown berries and the damage done by rains in Illinois and Missouri are two of the causes assigned for the advance.

Owing to the continued cold weather, asparagus will soon be a vegetable of the past on the local market. Other vegetables have also been affected by the backward season and the supply is somewhat scarce at present. Prices are as follows:

Vegetables: Asparagus 11c, 10c bunch; fresh carrots 10c bunch; new potatoes 25c@30c lb; yellow onions, 6c lb; new cabbage, 2c pound; lettuce, 15c; beets, 10c; parsnips, 5c bunch; radishes, round, 5c; 3 for 10c; long white, 5c; long radishes, 5c bunch; turnips, 5c bunch; yellow string beans, 15c; 2 for 25c; small cucumbers, 5c; 3 for 15c; fresh tomatoes, 15c lb; H. ## One Advantage of Belonging to a Woman's Club

THIS advantages of belonging to a woman's club need scarcely be urged today. The practical help it offers in many fields of women's work, the inspiration, the added zest to life it gives, are now old stories. The woman who does not belong to a club does not know the pleasure and the profit she is missing. One has to belong to a club to fully comprehend just how much she gets out of it. But there is one advantage not always thought of, and the benefit of which is really growing. And this is that membership in a woman's club gives one almost a national acquaintance. It opens friendly doors in a strange city, brings advice and help in an emergency, annihilates loneliness when moving into a new neighborhood, really makes the world, no matter where one goes, friendly.

This was illustrated recently in the case of a club woman whose child was taken sick while traveling. Instead of having to depend for a doctor upon chance inquiries at a hotel, she called up the president of the woman's club of the town, explained who she was, told her extremity, and instantly warm, friendly services were at her disposal. A good doctor and a good nurse were recommended, and almost as much kindness were shown her as if she were in her own home town. To be sure, the public is kind to a woman in distress, but there was more warmth and genuine friendliness in the kindness of those club members than in that of the casual public.

A club woman going to a strange city will find club membership bridging years in the matter of social life. It is particularly helpful to the young woman going alone to a strange city. She will find it will bring her acquaintances at once, hospitably open social life to her and throw about her protection in many ways. It does away entirely with that lonely, uphill fight to make a place for herself in her new environment.

So that to its other good features, the woman's club now adds this of making all the world friendly and helpful to the traveling woman and to the lonely woman. This is, of course, a side-issue compared to the big work women's clubs are doing. But nevertheless it is a feature not to be overlooked, and one which some day, may be of great service to the club woman in a strange land.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman past middle age, and after life of dependence on father and husband, have suddenly been called upon to earn a living for myself. My hair is turning gray fast, and I am afraid this appearance of age may prevent my getting employment. I dislike to dye my hair to look younger. Do you think it would be excusable in such circumstances? MRS. R. D. K.

If you really feel that your chances for earning a livelihood would be improved, I think you would be justified in dyeing your hair. However, you might try to see first what you could do without taking this course. Dyeing the hair often spoils it and makes it exceedingly hard to handle afterward.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I sometimes feel my mother thinks more of my brother than me, by favors she shows him, and it makes me jealous and unhappy. What can I do about it? GERTUDE.

Such cases are not unusual, many families having their "favorites," like as much of yourself and of life as you can, and win friends by a pleasing personality. Your mother's feeling will change if you do not allow conditions to spoil your temper and disposition.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have recently become engaged to a young man, but was very much put out by the engagement ring he gave me, which was smaller than some of the other girls have. If I loved him truly, do you think I would feel so? Do you think I ought to go on?

MABEL C.

It is quite likely that your fiance gave you an expensive ring as he could afford. If you are not satisfied, it may be a sign that your love was a bit shallow in the first place.

If it cannot stand a blow to your pride, it would hardly be serviceable enough for the wear and tear of married life. Perhaps you will feel better when you think it over a bit. Perhaps this is a test which came at a responsible time.

A Woman's Observations

TIZ!

"O, O, glories, what a feelin'! Wonderful what TIZ will do for your feet!" Just take your shoes off, and then put those weak, unenergized feet, even paralized, unfeeling feet of yours in a

"Just couldn't wait to take my hat off!"

TIZ bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy. They'll look up at you and almost talk, and then they'll take another dive in that TIZ bath! Yes, TIZ is life to feet!

The man or woman who says there's nothing like TIZ, TIZ never had a bath in a TIZ bath.

When your feet ache, get tired, swollen, tender or sore, just try TIZ. Your feet will just dive; when your cords, tendons and muscles will disappear. You'll feel like a new person. Your feet will keep you from being a TIZ person.

TIZ operates under a new principle, drawing out all the poisons from the body that make feet sore, carry and tired. There's nothing like TIZ, we refuse any imitation.

difficulty. Yet honestly and with all your soul, because there are a lot of fool people in this world who will think you are trying to scare them, even though you may be gurgling your last, if you don't take pains to impress them that you are really about to drown.

And when you hear anybody else yelling help, or, see anybody acting queerly don't hesitate to offer help, or get help at once. Take the risk of being fooled. It may mean a life.

A lot of boys and girls—and some older ones—appear to think that they have a peculiar license in the water, and say and do things at which they would blush if they were wearing their street clothes. A man has no more right to hug a strange girl in the water than he has to do the same thing if he meets her on the avenue. And a protesting squall from the girl in the water is not sufficient rebuke to the man who takes liberties nor which the girl's brother out to worship him.

At a public beach, right shy of strangers, anyway. All people look pretty much alike in the water, and the man or woman who may look good to you in the general washout might be one you would be ashamed to introduce to your home friends.

Have a good time—the best kind of a time; but don't have the kind of time that you'll be sorry for afterward, in health or in your conscience.

THE VALUABLE LEMON.

The lemon is a palatable medicine and one that is especially good for the blood. For thick, sluggish blood and inactive liver, the juice of a lemon in a glass of water every morning on rising is a most beneficial tonic. The lemon juice should be taken without sugar and drunk at least half an hour before eating, to give it time to be absorbed into the system before anything is taken into the stomach.

As a drink, hot or cold lemonade still stands first on the list of drinks. In combination with other foods and fruits it is also both refreshing and stimulating. A few tablespoonsful of lemon juice in barley water is a splendid drink for the sick.

There is a zest about a dish of lemon jelly to be served with different meats (fish and poultry), which is especially pleasing.

When serving bananas and oranges, fruits that are nearly always on the market, a bit of lemon juice squeezed over the fruit brings out the flavor of each.

In preparing frozen dishes, like raspberry or grape ice or ice cream, a tablespoon of lemon juice not only enhances the flavor, but makes the color more beautiful; a desirable addition to any dish.

Lemon juice and olive oil, with salt and cayenne pepper, is a simple and easily assimilated salad dressing for many vegetables and fruits.

As a garnish for fish, cut in dainty slices or in eighth, there is no prettier decoration, if combined with a little decoration, if combined with a touch of parsley.

Lemon Sauce for Puddings.—Stir until well mixed, a tablespoonful of flour and a half cup of sugar; add a cup of boiling water and cook until smooth; add a tablespoonful of butter, two of lemon juice and a little of the rind. Pour over the well-beaten yolk of an egg.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE HIGH LOW PRICE.

HERE is a certain condition or momentous business against which I wish the women of this country would in some way protest, and that is the influx of articles, which, though good enough to all outward appearance, are so cheaply made that they are almost entirely useless for practical purposes.

For instance, I tried five matches the other day before I found one which would accomplish the purpose for which matches are presumably made. The first two broke, the third had no phosphorus, and from the fourth and fifth the phosphorus snapped off, in the last instance alighting on my hand and burning itself out there, a happening which did not improve my opinion of cheap matches.

Again, I am constantly finding blotters that do not make any pretense of blotting, at least not in the deplorable sense of the word—they certainly blot things in the other sense. Sometimes the reverse side is elaborately decorated, but the blotted side is absolutely useless. And when I am ready to blot a letter, it is not a picture card that I want, but a blotter.

How often we find envelopes which have no intention whatever of being stuck together. The glue upon them is so scarce or of such inferior quality that it is impossible to make the envelope actually envelope anything, without a dab of sealing wax.

And surely you have noticed how much more easily the pencils of the present day break than those which we used to buy ten or twelve years ago. Why, good business sharpened it that half the pencil was consumed that way. Very good business for the manufacturer, but not so good for that unfortunate under dog, the consumer. These are a few examples of the cheap, well appearing, but practically futile articles with which the markets are so flooded nowadays, doubtless you can add many other examples from your own experience.

When the manufacturers of a century ago produced the wooden nutmeg, the joke went round the world, and Connecticut received a nickname that will probably last for life. Today we have many articles that are just as much "jokers," as far as utility is concerned, as the nutmeg, but we don't nickname any states for them—they are too common.

Now to me this is one of the most pernicious manifestations of the high cost of living. To pay thirty per cent more than you did ten years ago for a substantial and desirable article is bad enough. But to pay for the shoddily made that it is worth next to nothing is really far worse.

What can women do about all this, you ask? Well, they simply use the only weapon left to the consumer; they can refuse to consume. They can denounce it to the wholesaler, and who knows but that in the course of time the manufacturers might get the idea that shoddy goods are not wanted. They can buy the substantial article even if it does cost a little more. Believe me, it will not be more expensive in the end.

Shoddiness and cheapness—not indispensables, mind you, but the cheapness which is most costly in the end—are the curse of the age. Let us protest against them in every way we can think of.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by Henrietta D. Grauel

Men do not understand household principles or housekeeping or the intricacies of the stock market without special training for years. Yet these same men have the complacent belief, and so have some women, that no one need be taught how to perform the duties of the home making. "Women don't have to be taught to cook do they, nowadays?" I am asked often when I advocate practical training for our girls, just as though cooking was all that domestic science embraced.

This old-world would wag along lots smoother if homes were the sweet homey places they were meant to be, but infinite details included in that one word housekeeping require that the housekeeper should have "intuitive perception," "hereditary love for the work," be "naturally domestic," "fond of children," "eminently practical" and "a natural born cook." Many women are all this and more, as the homes of our land testify, but if one wishes really to be mistress of her home a thorough course of domestic training should be taken, not in the culinary department alone, but in every branch of housework.

Many is taught now in domestic science schools beside the "inetics of cooking." The scheme of work is eminently practical, covering housekeeping in every department, laundering, sweeping, elements and principles of cookery, eating, cleaning of silverware and glassware and washing, as well as sewing.

There is no use in pushing the theme to one side for the fact remains that there are few marriages where the wife is perfectly capable to manage the home; young girls are ignorant of the necessity close their eyes to it and their mothers ease their consciences by saying, "She will have to learn by experience."

JENKIN LLOYD JONES SOLVES THE PROBLEM

One of the problems that confronts the present day housewife is the servant problem. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, former pastor of All Souls Church of this city, now of Chicago, has solved it and gives the following suggestion.

Instead of training girls to be capable servants, let social workers devote their time to educating the housewife in the way to treat their servants.

"Domestic service is a fine art. It should be made honorable and profitable. When girls assume this attitude and housewives have grown broad enough to treat them as co-laborers and not inferiors, then there will be no servant problem, for there will be no servants."

"Women can be classified under two heads. Drudges and 'dolls.' The 'dolls' are productive of a degeneracy more subtle and certain than the lowliest drudges."

The Rev. Jenkin Lloyd gave this advice in his sermon at Lincoln Center speaking on "Higher Politics of the Home." The employer of women and children was as severely criticized as the lazy woman.

"Woman and child labor is a potent factor in politics," declared the speaker, "for it is cheap labor and demoralizes the legitimate labor market. Danish women and children are from our economic life except under conditions of equal labor and equal wages."

"Women must be no competition with men. All attempts to regulate woman and child labor have been met by employers with the statement that they cannot continue in business unless they hire women and children; that competition is too keen. This statement has been made by the Southern cotton mill owners. The nation should realize that such factories are better closed than to sacrifice motherhood and debilitate childhood—a menace more serious to the state than the closing of a few factories."

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN A NEIGHBORHOOD ROW

Another chapter in the Shimeall-Capman neighborhood row in the town of Turtle was started in Beloit when Charles Shimeall swore to tree-paw papers against C. J. and Josephine Capman. The papers are made returnable before Judge Clark at 10 o'clock today at the Beloit Municipal Court.

Mr. Shimeall, who is a deputy sheriff for Rock County, declares he notified the Capmans, who are his neighbors, some time ago to keep their live stock, chickens, etc., off his premises, but they had not heeded the notice. He says his growing corn has been damaged by the ноггs of the neighbors to keep the chickens, etc., shut up.

The last chapter in the neighborhood row was closed about two weeks ago, when Mrs. Capman was fined $1 and costs by Judge Clark for using abusive and obscene language. Mr. Shimeall was the complainant in this case.

Yesterday a petition was being circulated in this city asking for the removal of Mr. Shimeall as a deputy county sheriff, and it is believed this has stirred Mr. Shimeall to the action in bringing treason charges against his neighbors. Mr. Shimeall declares the petition is being circulated in Beloit because the circulators could not get more than five names in the town of Turtle, where he lives. He has been a deputy sheriff of Rock County for 18 years.

THE PINCH HITTER.

By Howard L. Rann.

The pinch hitter is one of the most melancholy figures in American history. He is the utility man of the modern baseball team, and is expected to attend all rehearsals, double in brass and play any part from Uncle Tom to Simon Legree after he has received his last entry in a beauty show the pinch hitter's number would probably be 492, but when there are any forfeits, hopes or emergencies to cope with he is usually there with several kinds of coping. When the game commences he is wrapped in flannel and tucked away on the player's bench until the last half of the ninth, when he is led out with an ash bat and an icy demeanor and requested to jolt the hancorous spit ball into the far confines of space, if, after looking the goods over carefully, he picks out a two-base hit, he becomes a popular hero and is crowned with mild, five-cent elation. If he doesn't hit anything but the purpling circumference, he will be kept busy for several days plodding past bottles and other duds out of his physique. The pinch hitter has his eyes tested once a week, to see if his lamps are out of carbide, and if he can't read fine print at a distance of 800 yards without putting on his glasses he stands about as much show of breaking into the next game as a one-armed gromman in a horse-coupling contest. It is a pathetic sight to see a determined pinch hitter against an insinuous with a break in it like a T-joint in the kitchen sink, and after whiffing three loud and explosive whiffs retreat noselessly to the bench and receive the coarse encumbrance of a mattocker who just as like as not wouldn't know a finger bowl from a jardiniere, but baseball is full of such mournful scenes.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1908, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Philip Ammon extended his hand. "I am glad to know you," he said. "You may take the handshaking for granted," replied Mrs. Comstock. "Daddies have a way of making the fingers sticky, and I like to know a man before I take his hand, anyway. That introduction seems mighty comprehensive on your part, but it still leaves me unclassified. My name is Comstock."

At last Mrs. Comstock finished the greeting.

"You are three miles from the city and less than a mile from where we live," she said. "If you will tell me what you dare eat, I suspect you had best go home with us and rest until the cool of the day before you start back. Probably some one that you can ride in with will be passing before evening."

Philip Ammon was on his feet, picking up the pall of greens and his thin red rod he stood waiting. Elvira led the way. Mrs. Comstock motioned Philip to follow and she walked in the rear.

Elvira proceeded slowly, chattering about everything along the trail. Philip was interested in all the objects she pointed out, noticing several things which escaped her. When Elvira turned toward the gate of her home Philip stopped, took long look at the big hewed log cabin, the vines which clambered over it, the flower garden ablaze with beds of bright blossoms interspersed with strawberries and tomatoes, the trees of the forest riding north and west like a green wall.

He laughed as he sat, breathing short.

"It doesn't seem possible that a fellow could lose his strength like this. My knees are actually trembling, but I'll be all right in a minute. Uncle Edie said I could come."

Then he began unwrapping packages and explaining to Mrs. Comstock how to cook the compound. He followed her into the kitchen, kindled the fire and stirred the preparation as he talked. While the mixture cooked he and Elvira walked through the vegetable garden behind the cabin and strayed from there into the woods.

CHAPTER XIX.
Wherein Philip Ammon is Shown Limberlost Violets.

AMMON looked at the girl in wonder. In face and form she was as lovely as any one of her age and type he had ever seen. Her school work far surpassed that of most girls of her age he knew. She differed in other ways. This vast store of learning she had gathered from field and forest was a wealth of attraction no other girl possessed. Her frank, matter-of-fact manner was an inheritance from her mother, but there was something more. Once, as they talked he thought "sympathy" was the word to describe it and again "comprehension." She seemed to possess a large sense of brotherhood for all human and animal creatures. She might as well have been a boy, so lacking was she in any touch of feminine coquetry toward him. He studied her wonderingly.

As they went along the path they reached a large silice covered pool surrounded by decaying stumps and logs thickly covered with water hyacinths and blue flags. Ammon stopped.

"Is that the place?" he asked.

Elvira assented.

"The doctor told you?"

"Yes. It was tragic. Is that pool really bottomless?"

"So far as we ever have been able to discover."

"And you were born here?"

"He had not intended to voice that thought."

"Yes," she said looking into his eyes.

"Just in time to prevent my mother from saving the life of my father. She came home never forgiving me. A little farther along is my violet bed. I want you to see it."

She led him into a swampy half open space in the woods, stopped and stepped aside. Ammon uttered a cry of surprised delight. A few decaying logs were scattered around, the grass grew in tufts long and fine. Blue flags waved, clusters of cowslips nodded gold heads, but the whole earth was purple with a thick blanket of violets nodding from stems a foot in length. Elvira knelt and slipping her fingers through the leaves and grasses to the roots, gathered a few violets and gave them to Phillip.

"Can your city greenhouse surpass them?" she asked.

Ammon sat on a log to examine the blooms.

"They are superb!" he said. "I never saw such length of stem or such rank leaves, while the flowers are the deepest blue, the truest violet I ever saw growing wild. They are colored exactly."

"He sees fine," agreed Elvira.

The next morning Mrs. Comstock called to Elvira, "The mail carrier stopped at our box."

Elvira ran down the walk and came back carrying an official looking letter, in which the position of lecturer on natural history was offered to Elvira, at a salary of $750 a year, with $200 for expenses.

"It is a new position. They never have had anything like it before. I suspect it arose from the fact I've been giving the grade teachers in their nature work. Mother, dear, I am going to accept this, of course. The work will be a delight. I'd love it most of anything in teaching. You must help me. We must find nests, eggs, leaves, queer formations in plants and rare flowers. I must have flower boxes made for each of the rooms and filled with wild things. I should begin to gather specimens this very day."

Elvira was on her feet. Her face was flushed and her eyes bright. "Can I help you?" Mrs. Comstock's strong face was pathetic. "Indeed, yes!" cried Elvira. "I never got through it alone."

Ammon came whistling down the walk between the cinnamon planks, pansies and strawberries. He carried several packages, while his face flushed with more color than on the previous day.

"Only see what has happened to me!" cried Elvira, offering her letter. "I'll wager I know!" answered Ammon. "Isn't it great? Every one in Ombashia is talking about it."

He laughed as he sat, breathing short.

"It doesn't seem possible that a fellow could lose his strength like this. My knees are actually trembling, but I'll be all right in a minute. Uncle Edie said I could come."

Then he began unwrapping packages and explaining to Mrs. Comstock how to cook the compound. He followed her into the kitchen, kindled the fire and stirred the preparation as he talked. While the mixture cooked he and Elvira walked through the vegetable garden behind the cabin and strayed from there into the woods.

He studied her wonderingly.

"Good gracious!" cried Elvira, staring at him. "But what does she do? How does she spend her time?"

"Spend her time?" repeated Ammon. "Well, she would call that a joke. Her days are never long enough. There is endless shopping to find the pretty things, regular visits to the dressmakers, calls, parties, theaters, entertainments. She is always rushed. I never get to see half as much of her as I would like."

"But I mean work," persisted Elvira. "In what is she interested that is useful to the world?"

"Me!" cried Ammon promptly.

"I can understand that," laughed Elvira. "What I can't understand is how you can be in—" She stopped short in confusion, but she saw that he had finished the sentence as she had intended. "I beg your pardon," she cried. "I didn't mean to say that. But I cannot understand these people I hear about who live only for their own amusement. Perhaps it is very great. I'll never have a chance to know. To me it seems the only pleasure in this world worth having is the joy we get out of living for those we love and those we can help. I hope you are not angry with me."

Ammon sat silently looking far away, with deep thought in his eyes.

"You are angry," faltered Elvira.

"You look come back to her as she knelt before him among the flowers and he gazed at her steadily.

"No doubt I should be," he said, "but the fact is I am not. I cannot understand a life purely for personal pleasure myself. But she is only a girl, and this is her playtime. When she is a woman in her own home, then she will be different, will she not?"

Elvira never resembled her mother so closely as when she answered that question.

"I would have to be well acquainted with her to know, but I should hope so! To make a real home for a tired business man is a very different kind of work from that required to be a leader of society. It demands different talent and education. Of course, she means to change, or she would not have promised to make a home for you. I suspect our dope is cool now. Let's go for try some butterflies."

"You should hear my sister Polly!" said Ammon. "This was her last year in college. Lunches and sororities were all I heard her mention, until Tom Levering came on deck; now he is the leading subject."

"Is Edith Carr a college girl?"

"No. She is the very selectest kind of a private boarding school girl."

As they went back along the path together Elvira talked of many things, but Ammon answered abusively. Evidently he was thinking of something else. "But the moth bait," replied him, and he was ready for work as they made their way back to the woods. He wanted to try the Limberlost, but Elvira was firm about keeping on home ground. She did not tell him that lights hung in the swamp would be a signal to call up a band of men whose presence she dreaded. So they set out, Ammon carrying the dope, Elvira the net, Billy and Mrs. Comstock following with cyanide boxes and lanterns.

First they tried for butterflies and captured several fine ones with little trouble. They also called swarms of ants, beetles, bees and flies. When it grew dark, Mrs. Comstock and Ammon went to prepare supper. Elvira and Billy remained until the butterflies went to bed. Then they lighted the lanterns, repainted the trees and followed the home trail.

Mrs. Comstock and Elvira were finishing breakfast the next morning when they heard a cheery whistle down the road. Elvira with surprised eyes looked at her mother.

It was just sunrise, but the whistle was Philip Ammon. He looked stronger than yesterday.

"I hope I am not too early," he said.

"I am consumed with anxiety to learn if we have made a catch."

"We will have to wander along the swamp and around the edge of the Limberlost today," said Elvira. "Mother is making strawberry preserves, and she can't come until she finishes. Suppose we go down to the swamp, and I'll show you what is left of the flower room that Terrence O'More, the big lumberman of Great Rapids, made when he was a homeless boy here. He was called Freckles. Of course, you have heard the story?"

"Yes, and I've met the O'Mores, who are frequently in Chicago society."

They went down the road to the swamp, climbed the snake fence, followed the path to the old trail and then turned south along it. Elvira indicated to Ammon the trail with remnants of sagging barbed wire.

"It was ten years ago," she said. "I was just a little schoolgirl, but I wandered widely even then, and no one cared. I saw him often. He had been in a city institution all his life, when he took the job of keeping timber thieves out of this swamp, before many trees had been cut. He was a strong man's work and he was a frail boy, but he grew harder as he lived out of doors, and he won."

WHAT FUR DID ADAM AND EVE WEAR?

UNCLE WALT
The Poet-Philosopher
Copyright 1909 by
George Matthew Adams
BY WALTER MASON

Old Jasper can't make up his mind; he looks before, he looks behind, and springs a grit of horns and haws and quotes a string of ancient saws, and asks advice from Dick and Tom, and gets no benefit therefrom. He's always on the rugged edge; he makes a plan, and then he'll hedge, discard it for another plan, and then on that he'll tie the can. When Jasper started his career propitious gods were smiling near; he had more chances to succeed than any swashbuckled mortal need; but always he would hem and haw, and shy at bogies made of straw,

WHAT HE THOUGHT

The Quietly Dressed Man—No, sir; I never take advantage of anybody who is not ready to take advantage of some one else.
The Loud-Dressed Man—Shake; I'm a bumbo-steerer myself.
One on Mother.
They talked during dinner of the recent anarchist activity. "That, ma," said it is an anarchist?" Little Willie asked. "Well, my boy," replied the father, "he's a person who is always blowing somebody up." The child turned to his mother. "Then you are an anarchist, ma?" he said.

and pause to read the book of rules, and manufacture old indecision statutes. And Jasper, as we go to press, is snorting round in great distress. He's been abandoned by his frau; the sheriff levied on his cow; he has no place to sleep or eat; the coppers shoed him from the street. "I never had luck," he cries, and with his whiskers wiped his eyes. "By all the fates I've been cursed the world has kicked me from the first." I see lots more from day to day, all headed down the same old way. The lane of indecision goes into a region rank with weeds.

She Knew.
"Miss Sharpe—er—Vera," he stammered, "you must know why I've been calling here so much; why I sit here in the parlor with you night after night?" "I suppose, Mr. Kloveneman," the girl interrupted, "it's cheaper to do that than take me out anywhere."—Catharine Standard and Times.

Craving for Occasional Change.
Something in human nature demands the introduction of the element of novelty into existence from time to time. The person is exceptional who can be content in the same routine, day in and day out, for months and years.

They Put An End To It.
Charles Sable, 30 Cook St., Rochester, N. Y., says he recommends Foley Kidney Pills at every opportunity because they gave him prompt relief from a bad case of kidney trouble that had long bothered him. Such a recommendation, coming from Mr. Sable, is direct and convincing evidence of the great curative qualities of Foley Kidney Pills. The genuine Foley Kidney Pills are never sold in bulk, but put up in sealed bottles, enclosed in a yellow carton. Ask for Foley Kidney Pills. Refuse substitutes. Badger Drug Co.
